Subject: You're not the only parent wondering if you're getting any of this right

Preview: NOW OPEN IN NEW YORK — Brightline family mental health clinic

The experts at Brightline know how it feels to spend weeks reading reviews, comparing, and hunting down the right therapeutic fit for a child (especially when you're not even sure what's going on).

Originally, they created Brightline for their own families. Their experience has taught them that what sets kids on the right care path are data-based approaches.

You know what else they learned? When the right help is within reach, the weight starts to lift. And now, that help is right here in New York.

The answers you're searching for aren't in your search history or the social media posts you've been saving. Brightline knows that the answers come from expert therapy and psychiatry teams who use real, evidence-based methods to guide:

- psychological testing and diagnoses
- evaluations and follow-up sessions
- care plans and measured progress
- individualized treatment through in-person and virtual sessions

With Brightline, you'll partner with an experienced, specialized team. They've done the research, reviewed the education, confirmed licensing, and vetted backgrounds. And they've implemented cultural sensitivity training so you're matched with a team who understands and respects your way of life.

In-person and virtual sessions. Actionable answers. And the relief you're searching for. Now, instead of trying to figure it all out, you're finally free to focus on your child again.

What you're going through may be new to you, but it's not new to them. When you know it's time, Brightline is the right place.
